Star Paws Stray Cat Project

Background :

Some people just ignore the existence of stray cats in their neighborhood or even see stray cats as pests. They live in the traditional market, housing area, and also the streets. Often, we find kittens being dumped inside a box on the street and in the traditional markets. People just don't want to be bothered by the newborn kitten and think that dumping the kittens in the traditional market will solve the problem. In fact, almost all kittens die instead of surviving. It is not different from slowly killing them.

Project Aims :

This project focuses on two main activities. Raising awareness of local people against animal abuse, spreading the message to start doing good things for stray animals around us. Supporting the cat lover community by helping them to maintain the shelter, street feeding, and fundraising. By joining this project, volunteers will also learn how to pet a cat properly and have a chance to practice Indonesian Traditional Martial Arts.

Main Works :

- ✓ Street Feeding in Universities, Traditional Market, and other places.
- ✓ Maintaining the cat shelter
- ✓ Taking care the rescued cats
- ✓ Learning and practicing the basic needs of petting a cat

Bening Saguling - Citarum River Conservation Project

Background :

Citarum is the longest river in West Java runs over 300 kilometres from the Wayang Mountain to the Java Sea. There are 30 million people rely on the water source for agriculture, water supply, fishery, industry, sewerage, electricity, etc. However, unregulated factory growth since the area's rapid industrialisation in the 1980s has choked the Citarum with both human and industrial waste. The 5 million people who lived in the river basin are directly affected. Over 200 textile factories line the river banks and contaminate the river with lead, mercury, arsenic and other toxins, changing its colour and lending the area an acid odour. Moreover, the river is also polluted and filed with trash such plastic, styrofoam, even dead animals.

Project Aims :

- ✓ To support the foundation program in environment conservation, social and education
- ✓ To promote the foundation as a learning center for environment conservation
- ✓ To organize mini library for local people
- ✓ To raise awareness about the garbage problem in Citarum river
- ✓ To organize environment education for children in Citarum Basin Area.

Main Work :

There are two activities: Physical Work (Picking up garbage from Citarum river and saguling basin, doing garbage management, planting trees, making organic fertilizer, gardening, and making handy craft) and Non-physical Work (Conducting language class, mentoring green school project, taking part in culture class, doing school visits, organizing an environment educational workshop or socialization, creating art activities and promoting mini-library)

English-Teaching in Semoya Village

Background :

Semoya Village is a cultural village that is rich in local potential. Located in the Special Region of Yogyakarta which is also famous as the best tourist area in Indonesia. This village offers a unique experience for volunteers who wish to dedicate their time and energy for the common good. This village has local potential such as cattle farming, wood craftsmen, local arts such as dance and music, as well as village children who want to learn a lot about foreign culture.

For this reason, GREAT together with one of the elementary schools in Semoya Village has collaborated to host international volunteers for the betterment of the village. By carrying out joint activities with foreign volunteers, it is hoped that it can have a positive impact on children and also on the volunteers themselves. Through language learning, cultural exchange and daily interactions, volunteers will gain unforgettable experiences with the residents of Semoya village.

Project Aims :

The main activity in this project is to help SD Muhammadiyah Semoya improve students' English language skills. Activities are carried out through vocabulary learning, songs, games and also conversations. Volunteers are also expected to be communicative with teachers with the aim of improving the teachers' English language skills. As additional activities, volunteers can help village residents in managing cattle farms and also learn local culture such as traditional music and dance.
